MODERN MACHINE SHOP CONSTRUCTION PLANNED BY PEARSON PUMP COMPANY

PORTERVILLE, Sept. 1 — Dudley Pearson, of Pearson Pump & Drilling Co., announces plans for further expansion, including the construction of a new 2400 square foot machine shop.

The building will face E street off the Olive street property now occupied by Pearson Pump and will house new, enlarged modern machine shop facilities. To make room for the new building, property has been leased one-half block north of Olive street, on E, for a new equipment and pipe yard.

In a seven year period Pearson Pump company has grown from a company that employed three men and operated two pieces of equipment to a company that now employs 14 men and operates 13 pieces of mobile equipment, in-pieces of mobile equipment, in-drilling rigs, test engines, mobil water systems, welding rigs and service trucks.

BENSON HEADS AGRICULTURAL COMMITTEE

PORTERVILLE, Sept. 1 — Bill Benson, immediate past president of the Porterville junior chamber of commerce, has been named chairman of the state junior chamber agricultural committee.

This committee handles all of the California junior chamber activities relating to agriculture, including the annual Outstanding Young Farmer contest.

Farmers Ask For Legislation To Prevent Waste Of Food And Fibre; Power Makes Statement

VISALIA, Sept. 1 — Organizations representing the farmers of Tulare county joined last Thursday in issuing a statement urging "that all citizens and organizations concerned with the welfare of the people of the state and with the welfare of California agriculture join in a campaign urging the California legislature to provide the protection necessary to prevent the wanton wastage of the food and fibre produced in this state."

This was the conclusion of a statement of policy drawn up in a session of directors of the Tulare County Farm Bureau, the Central California Farmers committee with headquarters in Dinuba, and the Tulare County Farmers association, which has headquarters in Exeter.

Gus Gulmert of Exeter, chairman of the Tulare County Farm Bureau labor department, arranged for and presided at the meeting.

Present to clarify their stand on the issue of interference of farm labor organizers with the harvest of crops this summer were State Senator J. Howard Williams, of Porterville, Assemblyman Myron Frew, of Dinuba, and Republican nominee for the assembly, Domer Power of Lindsay.

The preliminary session was held in the afternoon at the Farm Bureau assembly hall at which a statement of policy was drawn up. The policy follows:

"Owners and operators of farms in California are confronted with organizational campaigns directed to their workers during the peak of the critical harvest season which threaten spoilage and wastage of perishable food crops.

"If farmers are to continue to produce these essential commodities and maintain the dependable, constant supply of high quality food which consumers have the right to expect, protection must be provided from such "hit and run" tactics as are being directed at them, particularly during the harvest season.

"In order to assure orderly production, harvesting and marketing of California's agricultural products, we urge that all citizens and organizations concerned with the welfare of the people of the state and with the welfare of California agriculture, join in a campaign urging the California legislature to provide the protection necessary, to prevent wanton wastage of the food and fibre produced in this state."

Robert Hanley, California Farm Bureau Federation's legislative representative in Sacramento, was the first called upon by Gulmert to speak. Hanley expressed Farm Bureau's official position in the farm labor organization threat by stating that congress has always, in passing legislation favoring organized labor, exempted farm labor. Special tests for all students who have not taken entrance ex-

BEARS GUN FOR COAST CHAMPIONSHIP

PORTERVILLE, Sept. 1 — Porterville's slugging Bears — amateur baseball champions of California — will offer the "purple carpet" treatment as host team in the Pacific Coast Amateur baseball tournament in Porterville this weekend, but the pleasantries will cease there, as the Bears go gunning for the Pacific coast championship and a chance to continue toward the World Series of amateur baseball that will be played in Battle Creek, Michigan, on September 17.

The Bears open hostilities tomorrow, Friday evening, at 6:15 o'clock, when they tangle with the Washington state champions in the opening game of a double header at municipal field; Fresno meets the Oregon state champions in the second game.

Losers in the Friday night games will meet in the 6:15 open-

We Only Heard

BY BILL RODGERS

BIG AS is the Sierra, it's still a small place indeed. Witness the fact that on our recent trip to Lower Funston we learned that our next-door camp neighbors were Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Bogle of Taft and, in pleasant conversation along the bank of the Kern river, we also learned that Mrs. Bogle is the daughter of the late Kit Tatman, one of Porterville's colorful pioneer residents.

AND, OF course we inquired about old Porterville pictures, or old Porterville newspapers that might still be in the family file. Mrs. Bogle referred us to another relative "who saves everything," so we have hopes of uncovering another item or two relating to Porterville history.

WHICH LEADS us to again state that we always appreciate an opportunity to make copies of old pictures, and to take a look at old newspapers. These items have little monetary value, but their historical value is sometimes tremendous. And, unfortunately, members of the "younger generation" often destroy old letters, diaries, photographs and newspapers without a thought as to their possible historical importance. . . . If you have an old trunk in the attic, or old pictures or papers that date back to the early 1900s, or before, please, please do not destroy them without first letting some of us interested in local history — myself, Howard Frame, Miss Ina Stiner, or Donald Witt — take a look at them.

HISTORY EVEN carries on in face of new developments. Some of the local wags take great pleasure in dropping in on Esther Jones, at her new location on Main street, to order a glass of cold beer. Esther's new, and very colorful furniture store is located in what was, in the early days, the "social center" of the old Pioneer hotel, and up until recently housed the modern-day version of a saloon. . . . But now there is no cold beer, just cool furniture.

AND, INCIDENTALLY, this historic Pioneer hotel corner has taken on a new look, what with Esther moving in and with Claibes Pharmacy, now in its 50th year, boasting a shining new exterior and remodelled interior.

WITH A major political campaign underway, may we suggest that it is not very important how a candidate looks; it is important to know to whom a candidate is indebted. In the case of the State Assembly race in the 35th district, the people of Tulare and Kings counties should weigh well the fact that Assemblyman Myron Frew has accepted money from organized labor, and is therefore indebted to organized labor. Now, there is nothing illegal about this; the question of right and wrong is not involved. Labor groups can make political contributions under certain circumstances just as can business men, farmers and other groups. But with the substantial political contributions that the record shows Mr. Frew has received from labor goes political obligation, and the question that voters of the 35th Assembly district must answer is whether or not they want their Assemblyman to be bound by these obligations. It is fallacious to say that Mr. Frew is not obligated because the politician who accepts labor money is indebted. That's the way politics and labor operate. Think well on this matter, Mr. and Mrs. Voter. Don't rationalize. Think well and clearly.

about 100 years old. The loom was given to Mrs. Gage by Lester Reed, who worked in the Sierra for a number of years as a state trapper; it had belonged to his mother, the late Mrs. Whitman Reed, who resided at San Jacinto and whose family homesteaded in the Hemet area in the pioneer days.

On display will be a number of items made on the loom by Mrs. Gage.

There is no charge to look at the exhibits; some items are being offered for sale. Last weekend more than 100 persons stopped by the Gage home, to see the display, with one group registering from Sacramento.

RUSSELL REECE HEADS YOUNG REPUBLICANS

PORTERVILLE, Sept. 1 — Russell Reece was elected president of a newly-formed Porterville Young Republicans' club at a meeting held in Republican headquarters in Porterville Tuesday evening.

Reece says that the new club will affiliate with the State Young Republican organization; next meeting, to which any interested Republicans are invited, has been set for the evening of September 13.

"The Truth About Communism" Subject Of JC Speaker

PORTERVILLE, Sept. 1 — "The Truth About Communism" will be the subject of Mel Miller when he speaks at a meeting of the Porterville junior chamber of commerce, tonight, 7:30 o'clock, at Gang Sue's.

Miller is a former foreign correspondent, a writer, lecturer and world traveler. He will present first-hand observations resulting from personal experiences in the Middle East, Asia, and other parts of the world.

SHOCK TROOPS ARE READY FOR S-DAY NEXT TUESDAY

THERE IS A MOOD OF wary expectancy among the teen-age shock troops 'round and about the community. Next Tuesday is S-Day, with zero hour somewhere between eight and nine in the morning. At that time there will be concerted forays by teen-agers and sub-teen-agers on the PUHS Bastion and lesser strategic targets throughout our town. S-Day is short for the first day of school; and though it falls on the day after Labor Day, there is an element hereabouts that claims it is the true Labor Day.

YOUNGSTERS ARE VIEWING this whole proposition with mixed feelings ranging from bad to worse. The prospect of being shackled to a relatively orderly schedule after the joys and delights of summer vacation is not being greeted with outbursts of mad enthusiasm. A little lawn mowing, a little cotton chopping and a few other jobs begin to look like delights when compared to second year Latin and some of the other educational tid-bits in store. To our way of thinking though, summer vacation is ending just in time; about two weeks before boredom sets in for the younger generation.

BUT THEN PARENTS are notoriously short sighted about vacations and keep harping on the joys and rewards of education. The message rarely gets through, until the scholars become parents themselves. Still many words of encouragement and advice are being ladled out by parents, such as, "These are the best years of your lives," and, "Just think of all the fun you will have with your friends", and other nauseating comments. So, the troops are as ready as they will ever be, and the parents are even readier for S-Day, 1960.

IN SPITE OF SUNDAY criticisms and comments from a minority, we feel that the schools of this community are doing a fairly good job; we don't want to be too complimentary and encourage smugness, though. We have run a series of IQ and achievement tests, of our own devising, on the various callow youths and youthlesses that always seem to be underfoot about the premises. We have discovered them to be quite literate and capable of carrying on an intelligent conversation. We feel that year by year the teaching and content dished out to the customers in the schools has become better and better.

ENOUGH OF COMPLIMENTS. Now about this policy of etc., etc.

EXTENDED DAY COURSES FOR ADULTS WILL OPEN AT PORTERVILLE COLLEGE ON SEPTEMBER 6; CLASSES ORGANIZING

PORTERVILLE, Sept. 1 — Registration of adults for extended day program classes at the Porterville college has begun, and classes will start on Tuesday, September 6, according to R. R. Reising, extended day dean, and director of adult education.

The adult school office at the college is open from noon until 4:30 p.m., and from 7 to 9 p.m. each day through Thursday, and from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Friday, Reising said.

The extended day program, Reising said, is available to adults who wish to take courses for college credit. Some regular students who have day schedule conflicts are enrolled, along with adults in the community who are interested in the subjects, or who desire the credit to meet requirements.

Courses for which enrollment currently is open include agriculture-business, typing, principles of accounting, business machines, business arithmetic, principles of real estate, band, chorus, welding and machine shop, diesel fundamentals, beginning and intermediate French, intermediate Spanish, reading improvement, logarithms and slide rule, astronomy, electronics, psychology, philosophy, current affairs, and college level United States history.

Reising said other college level credit courses will be organized if a sufficient demand develops. All courses have a sustaining enrollment of at least 15 students, he stated.

CITRUS HOUSE CONSOLIDATION IS SUCCESSFUL

PORTERVILLE, Sept. 1 — The joining of two of the oldest citrus houses in this area recently, was a move on the part of the growers of Tule River Citrus Association and The Porterville Citrus Association which proved to be beneficial and progressive, it is stated by Henry A. Winters, manager.

This consolidated group of growers decided to employ the latest methods of bulk picking and handling for their Navel and Valencia orange crops. A committee was appointed by the board of directors to investigate bins, trailers, and other equipment, which would be used for such a project.

With the board's approval, the latest field equipment and the necessary packing house machinery was purchased which was most suited for the soils and terrain in the area. Changes in the packing house were made in order to accommodate this new method of handling citrus fruit, and the new operation was underway in November 1959, and continued throughout the season.

The results of the entire new operation for the 1959-60 season have been highly successful, and the savings have been higher than originally anticipated, Winters says. The whole plan of picking and packing house procedures, as well as many important phases of marketing, has been under the analysis and support of The Porterville Citrus board of directors. House foreman is Jim Thomas.

The growers of PCA are convinced that the bulk picking method and packing house handling, is in pace with progressive industry, enabling citrus growers to pick and market with greater ease and less cost, Winters reports.

Rodgers was nominated as a presidential elector at the Republican party state convention held early in August in Sacramento. The 14th congressional district that he represents includes Tulare, Kings and Kern counties.

In addition to serving as Tulare County Republican chairman, Rodgers is also co-chairman, with Tom Brewer, of Stockton, of the San Joaquin valley committee for the election of Nixon and Lodge.

By DAVIS HARP

HARP PRAISES HARP FOR STRING OF BROKEN WORLD RECORDS

Everyone wants to break a world record. In Rome, at the summer Olympics, there are probably in excess of 5,000 of the world's finest athletes grunting and groaning in the struggle to surpass a world record.

There are records to be broken in swimming, diving, running, walking, throwing, jumping, and vaulting, to name a few. In order to set records in these events a man must have tremendous ability and also be finely trained. Then he must perform flawlessly, as a small mistake could end in the waste of years of training. At the end of the huge struggle in Rome this summer there will probably be few world's records set, when you consider the time, energy and money spent toward that goal.

But, it isn't really that hard to set a world's record. Just anyone could do it if they put their mind to it. We have set a number of world records ourself that stand unchallenged. We claim both divisions of the Bermuda Grass Pull. This event is simple; the winner is the contestant who becomes disgusted and quits first. Our record for the Standing Bermuda Grass Pull is 2.7 seconds, it's easy to become disgusted with your head between your knees. Our Kneeling Bermuda Grass Pull record is 3.3 seconds. There is a certain kinship to nature while kneeling close to the earth so we lasted a little longer.

How's that for a couple of admirable records? We don't waste too much time in training either as our training routine consists of plenty of five cent cigars, and a brisk walk to the kitchen table three times a day. But our list of world records does not end there. We claim the top record for Weekend Loafing. In this event the competitor cannot turn his hand to do a thing during the entire weekend. In order to have your record submitted for consideration you should spend the entire time stretched out on the living room couch and your record will receive more attention if set under the handicap of having an energetic

WHAT DOCTORS SAY ABOUT

To Spank or Not

• Air Travel

Q. In general, do doctors believe in spanking?

A. Obedience from a child comes mainly from his love and respect for the parents. Some parents rear well-behaved, obedient children without ever resorting to spanking; others (especially those who were spanked themselves) use physical punishment. Most doctors would probably neither recommend nor condemn spanking but rather try to encourage a better understanding between the parent and the child who is constantly disobedient.

Q. Would air travel cause menstrual irregularities?

A. According to Air Transport Association doctors there is no evidence that flying any type of aircraft is a cause of menstrual trouble.

Senator Williams' Committee On Agriculture Will Consider Variety Of Farm Matters At Public Meeting

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 1 — Senator J. Howard Williams (R), Tulare county, a member of the Senate Fact Finding Committee on Agriculture, will attend a two-day meeting of the committee scheduled to be held in Sacramento, September 6 and 7.

According to the Tulare county legislator, on September 6 the committee will review capital outlay items for agricultural structures and facilities at the Camarillo State hospital and the Fresno and Chico State college farms. In addition, Williams pointed out, the committee will receive supplemental testimony from officials of the California Cattlemen's association and the California Wool Growers' Association relative to extent of livestock losses throughout the state due to predatory animals.

Wednesday, September 7, Williams stated, will be devoted to a consideration of the subject matter of Senate Resolution No. 63 of the 1959 regular session, relative to dairy and milk plant inspection fees and inspection practices for market milk.

In commenting on Senate Resolution No. 63, Williams said, "Existing variations in inspection fee schedules, together with overlapping of milk inspection jurisdictions, is causing complications and inequities for the milk industry."

According to Williams, the Ad Hoc Committee on Milk Inspection of the California Conference of Local Health officers has been studying this matter for several years and will report its findings and recommendations to the Senate Committee.

Williams is chairman of the Senate Standing Committee on Water Resources, and is a member of the Senate Standing Committees on Agriculture, Finance, Fish and Game, and Labor. In addition, he is chairman of the Senate Fact Finding Committee on Natural Resources.

CHAPEL CHIMES

By
Rev. N. J.
Thompson

How do you feel about your religion? Do you cry in church? Or do you feel like shouting "Hallelujah!"?

We do well to be stirred by God's Spirit.

Years ago, when George was the town's worst tippler, he'd slip into church, just to hear a certain lady sing. As she sang he felt very pious. He'd resolve that he and the bottle must part company. But when he left the church he'd enter the nearest saloon.

"Some 20 years ago, after years of hard drinking and evil doings, I attended a church one Sunday morning," George writes. "I felt no religious emotion at all. I did feel an awful sense of my sinfulness. I surrendered to Jesus Christ. He pardoned me, purified me, and put a new Spirit within me that has kept me as free of my old ways as though I were a different person."

George says he felt no emotion at his conversion. He's wrong! His whole experience at church was packed with emotion. He gladly heard the preacher. He was sorry for his sins. He was afraid of God's judgment. Hopefully, he gave his heart to God. Now he's parted company with the bottle. He's a changed man. Which proves he's thrilled and happy walking with his God.

Shouting and praising the Lord enlivened the early Methodist and Baptist camp meetings. Such enthusiasm has Biblical precedents. Read the Psalms. Hear the psalmist urging God's children to praise the Lord. Read the Acts. By fervent preaching, praying, and praise the early church wrought miracles.

Squeeze feeling out of religious worship. What have you left? Dry as dust formalism, lacking in living faith!

Without faith, and feeling, it's impossible to please God.

You must have both!

YOUR LEGISLATOR AT WORK!

Senator
J. Howard Williams

32nd District
California State Legislature

Financing the construction of projects in our state water development plan is not the only legislative problem connected with supplying adequate water to all areas of our State. A firm source of electric power to pump the water from where it is to where it's needed also presents some puzzlers. It is vital that any chance of a "no power — no water" situation be completely prevented, so well-considered plans must be devised now, to obviate any such danger.

Recognition of this necessity caused us to pass a law at our 1959 session which appropriated funds for a study of possible outside sources of power by consulting engineers. The Senate fact finding committee on water resources received preliminary results of this study at a recent hearing in Sacramento.

The committee was told by the engineers that the power needs of our state water program will require additional sources. It was said that this need justifies the building of and "intertie" between California and the Bonneville power network in the Pacific Northwest at the earliest possible date.

Suggested plans would call for construction of two transmission lines running from the Columbia river at Bonneville to Bakersfield. Each would have a 500,000 volt capacity. A steam power plant would be built at Cle Elum, Washington, to firm the power supply. Power offtakes to local utility systems would be provided for at two Oregon points and at Shasta, the bay area, Fresno and Bakersfield in California.

Cost of the intertie facilities was tentatively fixed at approximately $200 million by the engineers. No source for the necessary funds was suggested, but it was indicated it would be up to the people of California as to how the money for the entire project would be raised.

The committee was also informed that the intertie could carry power from the Oroville Dam of the Feather River-Delta Project to pumping stations on the aqueduct to southern California, as well as to markets in that area. However, if the Oroville Dam is delayed, as is suggested in a preliminary report submitted by another firm of consultants, the intertie could be used to supply firm power during the period before actual construction of the dam, the engineers stated. On the other hand, if construction of Oroville is started promptly, integration of its operations with those of Pacific Northwest projects would aid substantially in the regulation of wa-

FISHIN'

SLIM
WASHBURN

Cool weather last week resulted in colder, and somewhat more water in the Tule river, and fishing is a little bit better. But water is still very low and clear, and fishing for native trout is only fair.

The Tule river will be well stocked this week, for the Labor Day weekend in the areas around Camp Nelson, Camp Wishon, Cedar Slope, and the Moorehouse Hatchery. Fishing for catchables should be good in these spots.

Big Kern, reached from the pack stations at Quaking Aspen, is very good, particularly around Little Kern lake and Funston meadows.

ter for irrigation and flood control, it was said.

A second study which the engineers are to make will investigate cost factors in relation to benefits, assuming construction of the intertie by the federal government and also by private utilities. So far, the latter have indicated no interest in tying into such a project unless they build and operate it.

California, Oregon and Washington water and power officials attended the hearing. However, not all were agreed on the necessity for such an intertie. Spokesmen for California irrigation districts and several local water districts attacked the proposal on the grounds that there is no assurance of a firm supply of power from the Northwest for more than a few years at the most. It was also asserted that it would destroy any possibility of future water development by any California district dependent on income from power as assistance in paying for its projects. Many districts are in that position, it was said.

In these days of re-modeling, re-painting, and re-decorating we would like to suggest re-landscaping — After all, if you can get a new house or a new wife so easily you should be able to get a new yard. This re-landscaping might be just a couple of bushes to confuse the neighbor's dog or a complete reworking from front to back.

We can't entice you by saying they're wearing the plants shorter or returning to the sack look but we have many entirely new versions of old plants. These have been made hardier, prettier, or more compact through scientific juggling. So far we haven't been able to hybridize a cheaper price but then the "new look" never came cheaply either.

You can plan this re-landscaping yourself with a great deal of fun, and even more confusion, or we'll be glad to help you with it. For this there is no charge, so you can see we really are doing it for fun. In any case a little planning is necessary and properly done will give you a new yard without having to remove all the old shrubs. "E" Street north of Olive is the place. ## Farmers Ask bor on the basis that the problems are far different from those of general industries.

He mentioned that State Senator James Cobey of Merced has stated that he believes the state director of agriculture has gone beyond the intent of the law in ruling that a labor dispute exists just because a ranch is picketed.

Robert Hamilton of Dinuba, president of the Central California Farmers committee, declared that he has found that generally employees are not interested in joining the union.

"Why," he asked, "should outsiders come in and disrupt the orderly operations of a farmer to the detriment of both farmers and workers?"

O. W. Fahrney, manager of the Tulare County Farmers association, declared that the Agricultural Workers Organization committee makes a point of representing union members, but actually there are very few union members in agricultural work. He declared the leaders are working to make their own jobs better and "organized labor is buying its way into the political realm."

He said that only a very small percentage of valley labor comes from outside the valley, that critical shortages do exist at certain times and "to cut off the Mexican national program would hurt us bad."

Allan Grant, first vice president of the CFBF, emphasized Farm Bureau's position that agriculture is vastly different from other industries because of the hazards involved.

"This thing," he said, "has brought us together as no other issue has since I have been farming. We will not have the union agitator because we cannot exist if he is allowed to tell us how to harvest our crops. We are determined not to have a Little Wagner act in this state."

Domer Power made a clear and

ROBERT W. KIRBY, who spoke on "The Impact Of The Compact Car On Today's Market" at the Tuesday meeting of the Porterville Rotary club. Kirby is public relations representative of the National Automobile club; chairman of the day was Aubrey M. Lumley.

concise statement of his position. It was as follows:

"Certainly no one, least of all I, would even suggest depriving labor of any of its Constitutional rights to bargain, no more than to deny any man his right to the pursuit of happiness. But the Constitution was written to protect the rights of ALL the people, including the farmer and the businessman. Let us hope and work for the stabilization of the basic rights of ALL men; the stabilization of responsibilities, so that each of us may live in peace and prosperity and friendly accord, as it was meant to be.

"In the over-all picture, may I say this: I was born a farmer, have been a farmer all my life, and expect to die a farmer. The soil is in my blood, and I have never had a thought about having it cleansed.

"In Sacramento, any bill proposed that affects agriculture, in any way, will be studied carefully by me as to its effect upon the people of my district. And with my experience in farming I can assure you that no bill of ill favor to my district will ever be passed without my doing all in my power to stop it.

"It's true that I intend to represent ALL the people in my district. But in the second richest agricultural county in the nation, what affects agriculture affects the economy of this district.

"Concerning the establishment of a minimum wage: If we MUST have a minimum wage, then let it be on a national level. In my opinion, it would be unfair to both the producer and the employee should a minimum wage be established on a basis of California-only. If California only has a minimum wage law, then California is at a disadvantage, price-wise.

"An influx of workers from other states, should there be a California-only minimum wage established, would, in my opinion, upset the economy of the State of California, and directly, and adversely, affect in detriment, the lives of every man, woman and child in this state.

"Concerning Labor: Considering the fact that I have been a farmer all my life, it would be traitorous of me, and unbecoming to the pattern of my being, to say that I am in any way opposed to a man who earns his living by the sweat of his brow. No one is more anxious than I am, when opportunity affords, to share whatever good fortune Providence provides, with the people who work for me and make the most of the opportunity accorded them. I have bargained with these people on a wage basis for years, peaceably and successfully, both to the advantage of their welfare and mine. But I am against dealing with the Stranger In Our Midst, I sincerely believe he imposes an unnecessary hardship upon the people I like, the producer AND the employee."

Assemblyman Frew prefaced his brief remarks by stating that he did not know he was going to be called on to talk and had no prepared statement. He said that recently he had taken a tour of Tulare and Kings counties with State Director of Agriculture William Warne.

"We found no trouble or indication of trouble," he said.

He went on to say that in controversial issues it should be possible to sit down and talk over the points at issue, and that his interest is with Tulare county. He enlarged to say that if the occasion was to be used for political speeches he stood on his record and "I solicit your vote."

Senator Williams assailed the "lack of neutrality in the farm labor issue" on the part of the state departments, and he said he could by no means understand how it would be possible to determine that labor disputes existed in the past when frequently the pickets had not even worked for the farmers picketed.

"I am not convinced that we need new laws," he said, "but I think we need people in the state offices with the common horse sense to carry out the edicts already passed."

He said that if farmers unite in a strong and solid front, they can obtain favorable legislative action. He pointed out the example of the defeat of Assembly Bill 419 in the last session of the legislature when 3,000 farmers showed up in Sacramento to protest the passage of the bill.
